Since M is the induced volts divided by the revolutions per second, it follows that C/M is the rate of doing mechanical work; / . c, the work done per second measured in watts, hence C/M is the work done per revolution of the motor at any speed. If, then, we are given C and M , we can find the work per second, i. e, the rate of working, or the power, by simply multiplying the product C/M by the revolutions per second. Example 3. If the induction factor of a dynamo is five, and the maximum current one hundred amperes, $C/M = 500$, and the rate of working at twenty-five revolutions per second is seen at once to be 12.5 kilowatts. Many manufacturing firms have used the ratio of the watts to the revolutions per second as a basis of comparison of dynamos without perceiving its true significance, and have called this ratio the mass factor. The fact seems to have been overlooked that the ratio of the induced volts to the revolutions per second is a constant, so long as the useful lines per pole remain unaltered, being, in fact, what we have termed the induction factor. While the force factor and the so-called mass factor are one and the same thing, the latter is expressed in a way involving the idea of power and,...
