Ralph Randolph Gurley I am distressed for thee, my brother.: very pleasant hast thou been unto me. - II Samuel, 1: 26. The distress of David at the death of Jonathan, his faithful friend and bi other, was very deep and overwhelming. The love which the noble young prince had manifested for him, a love unselfish, strong, and unchanging in the most trying circumstances - a love which had separated him from his royal father, placed an insuperable obstacle between him and the throne of the kingdom, and finally led him to give up life itself on the disastrous battle-field of Gilboa - all this love passes vividly before him, and fills with its presence his whole being. The future, just opening before him - its vacant throne, its promises of power and glory, its ambitions and its bloody strifes - is forgotten in the sad present, and in the pleasant memories of his friend - Very pleasant hast thou been unto me, my brother: thy love to me was wonderful. Over all their past relations does the light of this love shine, imparting new sweetness to their past companionship, and a strange mystery to the event which he now deplores. I am sure that I express the sentiment of all your hearts, when I say that our distress at our bereavement to-day is mingled with most pleasant memories of the beloved brother who has been taken from us. Rev. Ralph Randolph Gurley was a man of very rare qualities, both of mind and heart, and his life, protracted through so many years, has been...
